HUNTLEY GIVES ADVANCE REPORT ON EICHMANN TRIAL BEGINNING TODAY

"Chet Huntley Reporting" will give an advance report on the Adolf Eichman trial which will begin today in Israel, 5:30 p.m. PST, on Channel 4. NBC News correspondent Martin Agronsky, who is presently in Tel Aviv, will narrate a filmed report on preparations for the trial.

The second portion of the program will be devoted to a study of underwater archeology in the Mediterranean. Films which will be shown are the first taken of these unusual ancient sites. John Light shot the underwater films off the coast of Sicily and Naples. He and three Italian brothers were the first to discover the ruins of a marble temple at a depth of 50 feet off the coast of Sicily.

The Bay of Naples near the town of Baia is the area of the second underwater ruins which are believed to be part of a Roman resort city. A comparison of this site and Pompeii also will be illustrated.
